Sciences and Technology

Dr Prabha Chandra

Professor, National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences, Bangalore

COVID-19 has uncovered new challenges and conversations around ethical research methods, researcher responsibilities as well as addressing respondent distress. We bring together perspectives across social science and clinical research, to share the vantage point of researchers actively collecting and using data around COVID-19 as well as the perspectives of IRB/Ethics Committee members adapting and guiding researchers around ethical research practices.

Presented by the COVID-19 Research Network (CORE Net)
